PROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

University of Oxford, Oxford Internet Institute, 1 St Giles, Oxford, OX1 3JS, UK 2007-present

Research Fellow: The Oxford Internet Institute (OII) is a department within the social sciences division of the University of Oxford. As a faculty member at the OII, my main responsibilities include leading efforts to secure grant funded research, leading the subsequent research programs, conducting research, publishing, supervising research staff, supervising doctoral and master's students, and teaching graduate level courses. Metrics of success include:

- Led collaborative research projects as Principal Investigator (PI) with 14 institutions across the UK, continental Europe, and North America, and coordinated with an additional 20 institutions in grant projects led by colleagues
- Policy recommendations from reports have been implemented by UK funding bodies (JISC and AHRC) and by the European Commission
- Success rate of over 70% on grant proposals (10 of 14 submissions as Principal Investigator), far higher than the usual standard of 15-30% success reported by the ESRC (UK) and NSF (US)
- As PI or Co-PI, £574K of research income to home institution and a further £/$/€1.25M to partner institutions in four years
- Wrote 9 journal articles, 6 book chapters, and 10 reports, and have a signed book contract
- Delivered 41 conference presentations and 20 invited lectures
- Organized or co-organized three conferences and five workshops
- Served as one of three faculty members on the departmental examination board, and as the only research faculty member on the departmental management committee
- Advised organizations including the British Library and the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC), and advised funded research projects
- Taught on three post-graduate courses

Supervisor: Professor William H. Dutton, Ph.D., Director, OII. Email: director@oii.ox.ac.uk; Tel: +44 1865 287210

Indiana University, Institute of Psychiatric Research, 791 Union Drive, Indianapolis, IN 46202 1997-2007

Research Data and IT Coordinator: Researcher and national data coordinator for medical genetics research studies involving collaborations of up to 13 leading American research universities; my main responsibilities included leading efforts to collect, manage, and analyze phenotypic behavioral data. This involved supervising efforts of a distributed team of researchers. Also responsible for all the IT planning and provision for the 60 faculty and staff of the IPR. Among the measures of success:

- Led information research and data collection efforts working with highly demanding medical doctors and other medical research personnel on a distributed team spanning the U.S.
- Managed large and complex data sets involving thousands of subjects with over two thousand variables per subject which required specialized management and analytic techniques which I wrote in the SAS programming language
- Responsible as the main source of overall quality control for the research data
- Implemented transition of department from a handful of standalone computers to a fully computerized modern facility

Supervisor: Professor John I. Nurnberger, M.D., Ph.D., Director, IPR. Email: jnurnber@iupui.edu; Tel: 317-274-8382

University of Nairobi, Sociology Department, PO Box 30197, Nairobi, 00100, Kenya

1995-1996

Visiting Lecturer: As a visiting faculty member, I taught both undergraduate and first-year master's level students. Courses included Advanced Rural Sociology, Gender and Development, and a course on Professional Development.

- The following examples of comments on anonymous teaching evaluations demonstrate my teaching skills. These are selected from student comments; a document with the complete set is available on request.
  - "He understands the language of the subject and has a command of the subject matter. He deals fairly with students and therefore I recommend him to other students. The course was original and interesting. Overall, the course was excellent and I would encourage it to be a course taught to all universities world-wide."
  - "Eric Meyer is an excellent instructor. He is thoroughly prepared for the class and knows his material well. He is helpful to students and does not discriminate. The course has enhanced my professionalism in sociology, exposed us to seminars, conferences and workshops, and has given us international aspirations."
  - "Has high motivation skills."
  - "His ability to involve students in the development of the course and build in them the capacity for self-growth. He is as effective as an instructor could be. He should teach this approach to his colleagues in the department. Thank you."

Supervisor: Professor Judith Bahemuka, Chair, is no longer reachable through the university, as she is currently serving as Kenya's Ambassador to the United Nations.

The College of Wooster, Sociology & Anthropology Department, Kauke Hall, Wooster, OH 44691

1993-1995

Visiting Lecturer: As a visiting faculty member filling the position of a permanent faculty member who was on sabbatical, I taught a range of courses to undergraduates including Introduction to Sociology, Introduction to Anthropology, Minorities in the American Workplace, Racial and Ethnic Groups in America, and Environment and Society.

- In over 600 evaluations, 86% of students rated my teaching as either good or excellent
- The following examples of comments on anonymous teaching evaluations demonstrate my teaching skills. These are selected from hundreds of student comments; a document with the complete set is available on request.
  - "Listens to everyone's ideas and treats them with respect. Covered a lot of material in a short period of time. We had better discussions in this class than I've had in any other class."
  - "Interesting and informative lectures. You can tell he really enjoys teaching. Overall great course, exceptional instructor!"
  - "Professor Meyer has an enthusiasm for teaching and for the material he teaches that I have not seen in many professors. He is willing to discuss students' opinions and considerations and encourages our input as if it is as important as the material he shares with us. He is truly one of the better professors that I have had at the College of Wooster. A+."
  - "Dr. Meyer was very respectful of other opinions and students' right to disagree. The class was conducted in a very respectful and orderly way. One of the best over my 4 years. I know that Dr. Meyer is filling in. If this tenure track position should become open, Dr. Meyer should receive it."

Supervisor: Professor Charles Hurst, Chair, is no longer reachable through the university, as he is retired. Current department chair, Professor David McConnell, was a member of the department during my time there and could speak to my employment. Email: dmccconnell@wooster.edu; Tel: 330-263-2476

EDUCATION

Doctor of Philosophy in Information Science specializing in Social Informatics, with a minor in Educational Policy Studies 2007
School of Library and Information Science, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana 47405

Dissertation Title: Socio-Technical Perspectives on Digital Photography: Scientific Digital Photography Use by Marine Mammal Researchers

Committee: Howard Rosenbaum (chair), Noriko Hara, Pnina Shachaf, Barry Bull

Award: ProQuest Doctoral Dissertation of the Year, awarded by the American Society for Information Science & Technology

Abstract: This dissertation examined the intersection between technology and scientific practice for marine mammal scientists who use digital photography in a technique called photo-identification, which allows them to identify individual animals such as whales and dolphins in the wild by photographing the animals and later matching these images to catalogs of previously sighted and identified individual animals. These methods have been in widespread use since the 1970s; recently, however, most scientists in this field have switched from film photography to digital photography. This research demonstrated that this seemingly simple change has had important consequences throughout this scientific domain. The research involved interviews and observations of 41 scientists working at thirteen laboratories, plus the analysis of supporting documents.

GRANT SUPPORT

As PI/Co-PI to Oxford/OII:	574,000	(£)
As PI/Co-PI to all partners:	1,813,000	(in a mix of £/€/€/$)
Total of all grant involvement:	11,155,000	(in a mix of £/€/€/$)

Grants as Principal Investigator (PI) or Co-PI

10) 2011. Using Web Archives: A Futures Perspective

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute	Total: €9,000	IIPC

Abstract: Much progress has been made in building tools for creating web archives, setting standards for web archiving, and building best practices for preserving web archives. IIPC has been instrumental in this advance. Considerably less attention has been paid to the full range of objectives that will be served by web archives. There is a shared assumption across the digital collections community that preserving and maintaining a record of the web is an important task. However, there is a need for a clearer understanding of the potential types of research that could be done using web archives. Otherwise, archives might not be fit for purpose, with the right tools available and usable. This project will produce a provocative white paper, to be delivered at the annual International Internet Preservation Consortium (IIPC), and a workshop discussing steps forward.

9) 2011. Digital Impacts: A Synthesis Report and Workshop

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute ISIS Innovation, University of Oxford	Total: £17,000	JISC

Abstract: In order to better understand the range of impacts that digital materials are having on research, teaching and learning, JISC have commissioned this synthesis report to bring together evidence from a variety of projects, and for OII to host a workshop bringing together experts and use audiences to discuss these impacts. As part of this work, the TIDSR toolkit (see grant #2 below) is being updated and re-launched.

8) 2010-2011. Physical Sciences Information Practices

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute	Total: £120,000	Research Information
Venters, Will	London School of Economics	OII: £85,000	Network (RIN): P33
Jirotko, Marina	Oxford eResearch Centre
Terras, Melissa	University College London
Wyatt, Sally	Virtual Knowledge Studio, Erasmus U, Amsterdam

Abstract: This study aims to develop our understanding of the current range of information behaviors in the physical sciences. Through case studies using observations, interviews, focus groups, and website logging, this research examines how physical science researchers appropriate both analogue and digital resources in their work.

7) 2010-2012. SEServ: Socio-Economic Service for European Research Projects

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Stiller, Burkhard	Universität Zürich, Switzerland	Total: €882,000	European Commission: FP7-
Boniface, Mike	University of Southampton, UK	OII: €163,000	ICT-2009-5 grant 258138
Courcoubetis, C.	Athens University of Economics & Business, Greece
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute, UK

Abstract: The Internet has evolved from the largely static Super Highway of the 90s to a critical infrastructure supporting all aspects of life. The European Commission (EC) is investing in the Future Internet with the aim of ensuring European competitiveness in the face of globalization and emerging societal challenges. The SEServ Support Action access to both socio-economic and technical experts in an integrated manner for FP7 projects, while investigating the relationship among Future Internet technologies, society and the economy.

6) 2010. Humanities Information Practices

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute	Total: £120,000	Research Information
Jirotko, Marina	Oxford eResearch Centre	OII: £103,000	Network (RIN): P28
Warwick, Claire	University College London
Wyatt, Sally	Virtual Knowledge Studio, Erasmus U, Amsterdam

Abstract: This study aims to develop our understanding of the current range of information behaviors in the humanities. Through case studies using observations, interviews, focus groups, and website logging, this research examines how humanities scholars appropriate both analogue and digital resources in their work. Case studies include users of the digitized resource Old Bailey Online, participants in the Enlightenment Letters Project, corpus linguistics historians, users of the Digital Image Archive of Medieval Music, the department of English at the University of Birmingham, and the department of Philosophy at University College London.

5) 2010. Researcher Engagement with Web Archives

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute	£26,000	JISC (Joint Information
Wyatt, Sally	Virtual Knowledge Studio, Maastricht, Netherlands		Systems Committee)

Abstract: The importance of the Internet for research, society, and the economy is without question. However, the content on the web is constantly in flux as it is updated, replaced, and deleted. Various efforts to archive the Web or portions thereof have been developed around the world. However, much of this work has been done from the point of view of preservation. Less work exists on how these preserved archives might then be used by researchers and others to ask meaningful new questions. In this project, we will produce two reports aimed at starting to bridge this gap.

4) 2008-2010. Study on the Social Impact of ICTs on the daily lives of citizens of Europe, and on society at large

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Wulff, Vulker	Universität Siegen, Germany	Total: €400,000	European Commission:
van Dijk, Jan	University of Twente, The Netherlands	OII: €52,000	SMART 2007/0068
Gareis, Karstein	Empirica, Bonn, Germany
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute, UK
Cullen, Kevin	Work Research Centre, Ireland
Lengyel, György	Corvinus University of Budapest, Hungary

Abstract: In recent years, information and communication technology (ICT) has permeated European society and economy, to an extent which nobody would have expected only a short time ago. Unfortunately, much of what has been said about ICT's social impacts has not been based on scientific insight but on guesswork, hype and 'common sense'. It is for this reason that the study on the 'Social Impacts of ICT', commissioned by the European Commission, has explored the available empirical evidence about developments in some of the most relevant domains in Europe, and beyond. The report summarizes the study's main findings.

Policy Impact: Adopted as part of the background research influencing the European Digital Agenda, which is Europe's strategy for a flourishing digital economy by 2020.

3) 2009. Digital history workshop

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Eccles, Katherine	Oxford Internet Institute, UK	£8,000	Joint Information Systems
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute, UK		Committee (JISC, UK)

Abstract: The project designed and hosted two consecutive workshops to investigate and explore the challenges and achievements in digitisation and e-content specifically within the Humanities. The first workshop was open to researchers at all levels and interspersed information sessions and summaries of digital resources with reflective papers by researchers using such materials in their research and teaching. The second workshop was open to doctoral students interested in learning more about using digital resources. Both workshops offered the opportunity to learn more about how these resources are working in practice.

Policy Impact: The recommendation in the final report to include practicing domain experts in training sessions has been taken up by the funding body as an example of best practice for subsequent workshop calls.

2) 2008-2009. Usage & Impact Study of Digitised Resources Funded under the JISC Phase 1 Digitisation Programme & Toolkit for the Impact of Digitised Scholarly Resources

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute, UK	£50,000	Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC, UK)

Abstract: The project used a variety of research methods in order to reach a more comprehensive understanding of the uses and impacts of digitised resources, and to assemble a Toolkit for the Impact of Digital Scholarly Resources, which provides open access to a set of approaches and tools available to measure and potentially improve the usage and impact of current and future digitisation projects. The five case studies were HistPop, 19th Century British Library Newspapers, British Library Archival Sound Recordings, BOPCRIS: 18th Century Official Parliamentary Publications Portal, and the Wellcome Medical Journals Backfiles. Quantitative measures included webometrics, log file analysis, scientometric (or bibliometric) analysis, and content analysis. These were complemented by an array of qualitative measures (stakeholder interviews, resource surveys, user feedback, focus groups, and questionnaires) that captured information about the whole cycle of usage and impact, which allowed us to examine the impact of the projects from the point of view of various stakeholders, starting with the host institutions (including libraries and archives) and their personnel responsible for implementation, and extended to the various types of end users and uses.

Policy Impact: This project has featured in two subsequent JISC calls and an Arts & Humanities Research Council (AHRC) call as an example of best practice. One of the JISC calls was specifically developed to respond to recommendations in the final report, and required all funded projects to deposit their materials in the Toolkit.

1) 2008-2009. JISC/NEH Transatlantic Digitisation Collaboration: World Wide Web of Humanities

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Meyer, Eric T	Oxford Internet Institute, UK	OII: £63,000	Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC, UK) and
Carpenter, Kris	Internet Archive, San Francisco, CA, USA	IA: $120,000	National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH, USA)
Middleton, Mark	Hanzo Archives Ltd., UK

Abstract: The World Wide Web is enormous and is in constant flux, with more web content lost to time than is currently accessible via the live Web. The growing body of archived web material available to researchers is immensely valuable as a record of important aspects of modern society, but there is little, if any, supporting infrastructure, processes and trusted methods available to facilitate domain specific Internet research. Researchers are expected to individually assemble research data needed for analysis. This project began to address this gap by establishing a framework for web archive research using available open source tools and technologies and archived web content to create novel research interfaces to the demonstrator web collections on the topics of WWI and WWII.

Grants as Researcher and/or Advisor

8) 2010-2012. KNetworks: Towards the Knowledge Society (Advisor/Researcher)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Caldas, Alexander	CEGER, Lisbon, Portugal	Tot: €1.2M	Atlantic Area Transnational Programme of the European Union
Astray, Braulio	Fundación Universidad da Coruña, Spain	OII: €200K
Pesquera, Miguel	Universidad de Cantabria, Spain
Cooke, Philip	Cardiff University, UK
Dutton, William	Oxford Internet Institute, UK
Eveno, Emmanuel	Université de Toulouse II - Le Mirail, France

Abstract: The KNetworks project will create a strong knowledge sharing and dissemination Network in the Atlantic Area to promote the exchange of best practices for building and exploiting a 21st Century Knowledge and Information Society involving the joint effort of many stakeholders, including companies, universities and governments. The implementation of the Knowledge and Information Society should be closely linked to the development of skills in conjunction with improving the quality of life of citizens. The project will study the conditions and requirements for the creation of the European Knowledge Centre (EKC) in the Atlantic Area.

Website: <http://atlanticprojects.inescporto.pt/project-area/knetworks>

7) 2010-2012. ULab: European Laboratory for Modelling the Technical Research University of Tomorrow (Advisor)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
León, Gonzalo	U Politécnica de Madrid, Spain	Tot: €600,000	European Commission (EC);
Macii, Enrico	Politecnico di Torino, Italy	OII: €100,000	FP7-SCIENCE-IN-SOCIETY-2010-UNIV
Thomas, Hofmann	Technische U München, Germany
Walmsley, Ian	The University of Oxford
Godefroy, Kugel	ParisTech, France

Abstract: Ulab opens the door to a new University concept based on strategic collaboration of various institutions willing to work together and share strategies in order to improve the quality and impact of their research, and therefore, better service to business and society. Ulab strengthens collaboration among universities “to promote and support networking and new forms of cooperation among universities and other knowledge-related agents, to strengthen the role of universities in the interaction with society and community engagement.”

6) 2005-2011. Oxford e-Social Science Project (OeSS): Ethical, Legal and Institutional Dynamics of Grid-enabled e-Sciences (Researcher, from 2007)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Dutton, William	Oxford Internet Institute, UK	£1.6 M	Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC): RES-149-25-1082
Schroeder, Ralph	Oxford Internet Institute, UK
Jirotko, Marina	Oxford eResearch Centre, UK
Woolgar, Steve	Saïd Business School, The University of Oxford, UK

Abstract: Scientific collaboration is increasingly coming to be seen as critically dependent upon effective access to shared digital research data and the advanced information tools that enable data storage, search, retrieval, visualization, and higher level analysis. The increasing role that advanced ICTs play in scientific research promises to transform the way facts about the physical and social world are acquired, shared, analyzed, and translated into useful knowledge. Building large, collaborative systems is not just a technical challenge: by looking at e-Research from a social shaping perspective, we are able to understand how researchers shape technologies they use, and how they in turn have their behavior shaped by the technologies and by social, ethical, legal and organizational forces.

Website: <http://www.oii.ox.ac.uk/microsites/oess/>

5) 2009. eResearch 2020: EU study on global research infrastructures (Researcher)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Robinson, Simon	Empirica, Bonn, Germany	Tot: €400,000	European Commission (EC)
Schroeder, Ralph	Oxford Internet Institute, UK	OII: €40,000
Barjak, Franz	Univ of Applied Sciences of Northwestern Switzerland
Lane, Julia	University of Chicago

Abstract: The main goal of this European Commission study was to better understand the organizational, collaborative and technological developments in e-Infrastructures which are effective in supporting virtual research organizations in different fields.

Policy Impact: The final report and included roadmap have been accepted by the European Commission as part of their evidence base for establishing priorities for research infrastructure development in the years leading to 2020.

3) 1997-2007. A collaborative genomic study of bipolar disorder (National research data coordinator, until 2007)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Nurnberger, John	Indiana University, Indianapolis, IN	$1.3 M	National Institutes of Health (NIH) and National Institutes of Mental Health (NIMH): R01 MH59545
Reich, Ted	Washington University, St. Louis, MO
MacKinnon, Dean	Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD
McMahon, Francis	NIMH Intramural, Bethesda, MD
Kelsoe, John	University of California San Diego, CA
Byerley, William	University of California San Francisco, CA

Scheftner, William	Rush University, Chicago, IL
Gershon, Elliot	University of Chicago, Chicago, IL

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Coryell, William	University of Iowa, IA

Abstract: In an ongoing collaboration to discover the genetic causes underlying bipolar disorder, this research project collected blood samples for genotyping along with extensive phenotypic information on subjects both to establish a diagnosis of bipolar or one of its variants, and to allow for the development of fine-grained sub-phenotypes from the interview and self-report data. This was the extension of earlier studies by a subset of the same team going back to 1988.

Policy Impact: Selected as one of the eight projects included in the GAIN (Genetic Association Information Network) public-private partnership (<http://www.genome.gov/19518664#al-4>) and the dbGaP national genomics resource (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/gap>).

- 2) 1997-2007. Collaborative study on the genetics of alcoholism (COGA) (Co-investigator 2006-2007, Data coordinator 1997-2007)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Begleiter, Henri	State University of New York (SUNY) Downstate, NY	$2.5 M	National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA): U10 AA008401

Rice, John	Washington University, St. Louis, MO
Hesselbrock, Victor	University of Connecticut, Hartford, CT
Crowe, Raymond	University of Iowa, IA
Schuckit, Marc	University of California San Diego, CA

Abstract: In response to the overwhelming evidence from twin, family, and adoption studies for a major genetic influence on vulnerability to alcoholism, NIAAA has funded the Collaborative Studies on Genetics of Alcoholism (COGA) since 1989, with the goal of identifying the specific genes underlying this vulnerability. The project has assembled a collection of >300 extended families densely affected by alcoholism, consisting collectively of >3000 individuals, with extensive clinical, neuropsychological, electrophysiological, biochemical, and genetic data, and a repository of immortalized cell lines from these individuals, to serve as a permanent source of DNA for genetic studies.

Policy Impact: Selected for inclusion in the dbGaP national genomics resource (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/gap>)

Website: <http://www.niaaa.nih.gov/ResearchInformation/ExtramuralResearch/SharedResources/projcoga.htm>

- 1) 2005-2009. Adolescents at high risk for familial bipolar disorder (National research data coordinator, until 2007)

PIs	Partners	Amount	Funder
Nurnberger, John	Indiana University, Indianapolis, IN	$1.7 M	National Institutes of Health (NIH) and National Institutes of Mental Health (NIMH): R01 MH068009
MacKinnon, Dean	Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD
McInnis, Melvin	University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI
Reich, Wendy	Washington University of St. Louis, MO

Abstract: This collaboration was designed to identify risk factors and early warning signs among adolescents at high risk for developing bipolar disorder due to family genetic risk. Using a longitudinal design, adolescents in families with multiple cases of bipolar disorder among adult relatives were recruited and followed up in two year intervals to assess their phenotypic and genotypic profiles, and then to distinguish between those who later do or do not develop bipolar disorder.
